Aim Higher for Students campaign

Wayne Law is upholding its promise as a law school of opportunity with an urgent appeal to our alumni and friends — the Wayne Law Aim Higher for Students campaign.

The effort will increase the Law School's ability to fund both need-based and merit-based scholarships, as well as law student opportunities through technology and targeted experiences such as legal clinics, internships, public interest law work and service-learning. The goal is to increase annual Law School scholarships and new endowed funds, creating resources that will have a significant and direct impact on Wayne Law students from their first year through graduation. With Honors Convocation approaching, we would like to add more funds to existing scholarships as well as ask our alumni and friends to underwrite new ones. Resident tuition and fees for a first-year JD student taking a normal course load at Wayne Law is $22,407 for academic year 2008-2009. And that doesn't include books.

Wayne Law's Aim Higher for Students campaign seeks to meet the needs of our students, create a viable future for our community and uphold the highest standards of the law.

The future of our law students is in your hands. Your gift to the Law School's Aim Higher For Students campaign will assure Wayne Law students the opportunity to pursue their dreams and continue to build on the Law School's legacy.

Every lawyer must pass the bar. Ours go on to raise it.
