Students who come to Wayne Law become part of a legal network committed to serving others as warriors for justice. Together, they are something larger than themselves. We are a family here.”

— Jocelyn Benson
Dean

Jocelyn Benson was named dean of Wayne Law in June 2014, after having served as interim dean since December 2012. She is a graduate of Harvard Law School and is an expert in civil rights law, education law and election law.
Seven reasons to start your future at Wayne Law:

1. Make an impact and acquire hands-on experience working on real cases through clinics, externships and other opportunities.

2. Learn from expert faculty, who have on-going experience in precedent-setting cases locally, statewide, nationally and internationally.

3. Receive personalized attention through small class sizes and a comprehensive mentoring program linking incoming students with faculty, alumni and third-year students.

4. Benefit from numerous scholarship, grant and award programs.

5. Gain exposure to the growing number of new careers available to law school graduates through our Damon J. Keith Center for Civil Rights, Levin Center at Wayne Law, Program for Entrepreneurship and Business Law, and Program for International Legal Studies.

6. Graduate with the kind of practice-ready skills and experience that consistently have landed Wayne Law alumni jobs at top firms.

7. Begin your career by connecting with our vast alumni network of more than 11,000 – judges, justices, law firm partners, government officials – working in every state in the nation and more than a dozen foreign countries.

National recognition for innovative clinic, practical training

Wayne Law’s Legal Advocacy for People with Cancer Clinic was recognized as one of the nation’s top 15 most-innovative law school clinics for 2015 by preLaw magazine. Wayne Law was the only Michigan law school represented on the list. In addition, Wayne Law was recognized as one of the best law schools in the nation for practical training for 2015 by The National Jurist magazine.

Bar exam success

Wayne Law graduates are high performers on the Michigan Bar Exam, consistently passing on their first try at a rate higher than the statewide average. Wayne Law’s bar passage rate has continued to rise.

The J.D. degree

Wayne Law offers three program options for the first year of study to meet the various needs of a diverse student body. They include a full-time day program, a combined day and evening program, and a part-time evening program.

- Full-time day program — students take all courses during the day, completing 30 credit hours in their first year, 15 hours each semester

- Combined day/evening program — students take three courses at night, as well as one or two day courses each semester, completing 22 to 30 hours in their first year, 11 to 15 hours each semester

- Part-time evening program — students take three courses all at night, completing 16 credit hours in their first year, eight hours each semester

First-year students learn fundamental legal theory, as well as how to identify and analyze legal issues, through introductory courses including:

- Civil Procedure
- Constitutional Law
- Contracts
- Criminal Law
- Legal Research and Writing
- Property
- Torts

Orientation

As a first-year Wayne Law student, you will participate in a weeklong orientation program to introduce you to our legal system, the case method, and the procedures and analytical skills needed in the first weeks of law school. With your classmates, you will use these new skills to analyze a hypothetical problem. Orientation also will provide informal opportunities to help you meet your fellow students and Wayne Law faculty members.

Arthur Neef Law Library

A comprehensive, service-oriented law library should be a top priority when considering law school. As a student at Wayne Law, you will have ready access to an outstanding law library and four additional libraries that form the University Library System.

Highlights of the law library include:

- Extensive print and digital resources that provide a solid foundation for research, scholarship and learning
- Professional J.D./M.L.S. reference librarians on site and Ask-A-Librarian web-based research assistance
- Wireless access to the Internet and web resources throughout the Law School complex
- A computer lab reserved for Wayne Law students with scanning and printing capabilities
- Spacious study areas, including 14 group study rooms that Wayne Law students may reserve online
The distinguished professors at Wayne Law help encourage each student to strive toward success. In my experience at Wayne Law, every professor has made a strong effort to reach out to individual students and offer their insight and guidance. Their expertise in the law brings confidence to the student body that shows in every classroom.”

Course offerings may vary from year to year.
For students interested in how the law meshes with legislative investigations and oversight, the Levin Center offers an opportunity to explore that interaction through coursework, research, conferences and more."

— Carl Levin
Former U.S. Senator; Chair, Levin Center at Wayne Law; Distinguished Legislator in Residence, Wayne Law
Levin Center at Wayne Law

Established in 2015, the Levin Center at Wayne Law educates future attorneys, business leaders, legislators and public servants on their role overseeing public and private institutions and using oversight as an instrument of change. Through academic programming, training and research, the center will equip future lawyers, legislators and leaders with an understanding of how effective legislative oversight can lead to significant and meaningful changes in public policy.

The center hopes to inspire and train a new generation to embrace their responsibility to ensure public and private institutions operate with integrity, transparency and accountability to the general public in honor of former U.S. Sen. Carl Levin’s distinguished career in public service.

Center programs

- Academic courses at Wayne Law about the legislative process, oversight, the role of taxation in individual and institutional behavior, and financial regulation.

- Workshops and training sessions on the federal, state, local, tribal and international levels to strengthen the ability of leaders and their staffs to carry out effective oversight. The training programs will be conducted in Detroit; Washington, D.C.; or online. The Levin Center also will establish intern and fellowship programs to build a cadre of individuals with practical oversight skills and experience.

- National symposia on topics such as congressional oversight of the intelligence community, tax loopholes and how they affect income inequality, corporate taxation reforms, regulating bank misconduct and financial risks, and government ethics.

- Research to advance the role of the federal, state, local and tribal governments in overseeing public and private institutions, particularly in the Midwest. The center would develop and publish research in cooperation with academics, community advocates and other stakeholders.

Former U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, Michigan’s longest-serving senator, is chair of the Levin Center at Wayne Law and the Law School’s distinguished legislator in residence. In his 36-year Senate career, Levin earned respect from his colleagues on both sides of the political aisle for his integrity, resourcefulness and diligence, and ability to build consensus. He became one of the nation’s most respected leaders on national security, a powerful voice for equality and justice, and a fighter for economic fairness.

For more information about the center, visit law.wayne.edu/levincenter.
Edsel B. Ford II commissioned this portrait of Judge Damon J. Keith by local artist Nancy Mitter. It is displayed in the exhibit area of the Keith Center.

"It is my hope that students entering the Damon J. Keith Center for Civil Rights at Wayne Law view the center as a way of committing to the struggle for freedom and as a means for ensuring that those four words etched on the United States Supreme Court – equal justice under law – be realized."

— Damon J. Keith, LL.M., ’56
Senior Judge, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit
Damon J. Keith Center for Civil Rights

Do you want to pursue a legal career to help ensure equal justice under the law for future generations? Whether you’re interested in working on issues related to housing segregation or economic opportunities for diverse groups, the Damon J. Keith Center for Civil Rights will provide you with numerous opportunities to promote civil rights and racial justice.

The Keith Center honors the life and legacy of Judge Damon J. Keith by carrying out his vision for civil rights. It advances learning; attracts talented faculty, students and lecturers; and promotes civil rights in one of the most culturally rich and diverse cities in the United States. The Keith Center has active programs of legal studies and promotes community engagement.

In summer 2014, WSU was awarded a three-year, $1.3 million grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to launch the Detroit Equity Action Lab at the Keith Center. Through this initiative, 60 leaders working in the many dimensions of racial equity, including arts and media, community development, education, environment, food security, health care and housing, will address issues of structural racism in Detroit.

The 10,000-square-foot Keith Center building features meeting space, conference space and a 60-person lecture hall. An exhibit area houses a permanent version of Marching Toward Justice, documenting the story of the 14th Amendment and the struggle for equal rights.

Program for International Legal Studies

International law cuts across all aspects of a Wayne Law legal education. One-third of the faculty teaches and writes on international subjects, and faculty members enjoy world-wide reputations as innovative and prolific scholars. Classes are available on a remarkable range of global topics. Wayne Law’s Jessup International Law Moot Court Team has won the Midwest championship two of the past three years.

The Program for International Legal Studies offers students the opportunity to explore international law through classes, summer internships abroad and co-curricular activities. It hosts an annual lecture series that brings renowned international law experts to campus. The program also hosts conferences on critical issues in international law. One conference addressed Legal Aspects of the U.S.–China economic relationship. The keynote speaker was former U.S. Trade Representative Ambassador Charlene Barshefsky, who played a critical role in negotiating China’s entry into the World Trade Organization. Another addressed The Future of the Arab Spring and its Implications for the United States. The most recent was about The American Law of Treaties.

The Program for International Legal Studies also sponsors opportunities for students to work on international legal issues first hand.

International Public Interest Law Fellowships

These fully funded internships allow students to travel abroad and work for non-governmental organizations during the summer after their first or second years. The partner non-governmental organizations engage in advocacy on a broad range of issues including environment, human rights, law reform and women’s rights. Our partners have been in Africa, the Caribbean, Central Asia, India and Latin America.

Tata Motors internship in Mumbai

This internship in Mumbai, India, funds students to work in the general counsel’s office at Tata Motors, one of the world’s largest auto manufacturers. Tata interns spend the summer gaining insight into multinational transactions and exposure to one of the world’s most vibrant and fastest-growing economies.

Freeman Fellowship in The Hague

Students are funded to attend the prestigious Hague Academy of International Law, the academic arm of the International Court of Justice, and study public or private international law. Courses are given by the world’s leading international lawyers.

WilmerHale International Arbitration Group in London

Students work as paid interns in the international arbitration practice group of WilmerHale in London. The lawyers in this group are among the world’s leaders in their field, handling some of the most high-profile and complex matters in international commercial arbitration. This experience will be of lasting value to those interested in careers in arbitration, commercial law, federal litigation and international business transactions.

Hogan Lovells BSTL internship in Mexico City

Students work as paid interns at one of the leading law firms in Latin America in Mexico City. Matters include anti-trust, foreign direct investment, international commercial arbitration and regulatory controls.
The Program for International Legal Studies brings the world to Wayne Law. Each semester, a speaker series brings world-renowned scholars to the Law School to talk about current events. Students who are members of Wayne Law’s International Law Student Association are able to attend international law conferences and, most important, spend their summer working at esteemed international law firms. The Program for International Legal Studies acts as a pathway to global awareness and change, as well as networking and career opportunities.”

Additional international opportunities

Michigan International Lawyer
The Michigan International Lawyer is the publication of the International Law section of the State Bar of Michigan. It is edited by Wayne Law students. Student editors solicit articles on a range of international law topics, prepare them for publication and interact with authors, who are frequently leading international practitioners in the state.

Transnational Environmental Law Clinic
Wayne Law has partnered with the University of Windsor Law School to create North America’s first Transnational Environmental Law Clinic. Working together with the Great Lakes Environmental Law Center, students take on a wide variety of regional and bilateral environmental legal issues such as air quality, environmental justice, Great Lakes water quality and quantity, invasive species and renewable energy.

Asylum and Immigration Law Clinic
Students in this clinic represent clients seeking immigration benefits including asylum, relief under the Convention Against Torture, U and T visas for victims of trafficking and other crimes, and relief under the Violence Against Women Act. Students are exposed to international human rights issues and the impact on U.S. immigration law of various international treaties, such as the U.N. Refugee Convention and the Convention Against Torture. Working with their clients, students experience different cultures and languages. The clinic has represented clients from countries around the world, including Burundi, Cameroon, Colombia, Cote D’Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Egypt, Estonia, Kenya, Malaysia, Mexico, Nigeria, Palestine, Rwanda, Somalia and Uganda.

Wayne Law offers additional opportunities for global study through:

- Courses at Windsor Law, just across the border in Canada
- International study and student exchange programs with the University of Maastricht in The Netherlands, as well as China University of Political Science and Law and Northwest University of Politics and Law in China.
- Jessup International Law Moot Court Team
- International Law Student Association
Are you interested in pursuing an advanced legal degree? Combining your love of law with another area of study? If so, be sure to check out these program options offered at Wayne Law.

Master of Laws (LL.M.) program

Lawyers who already have received a J.D. degree from an accredited U.S. law school or an equivalent degree in another country may undertake advanced legal studies through Wayne Law’s master of laws program. The LL.M. program provides a major in U.S. law for international students who seek a general understanding of the U.S. legal system to enhance their home country practice. It provides majors in corporate/finance law, labor/employment law and taxation for domestic and international students seeking specialized legal knowledge and skills.

The curriculum includes day and evening courses taught by nationally recognized faculty and expert practitioners. Most classes include both upper-level J.D. students and LL.M. students. Each LL.M. major has required and elective courses, with some credits available for approved courses in other university departments or schools, such as business, economics, finance, industrial relations and political science.

Full-time students can complete their LL.M. coursework in one year, while part-time students generally require two or more years. LL.M. students majoring in corporate/finance, labor/employment or tax law complete a master’s thesis, written and researched in collaboration with a faculty adviser, as the capstone course. U.S. law students aren’t required to complete a master’s thesis.

Dual degree programs

The Law School offers, in conjunction with other colleges of the university, six dual degree programs that allow students to earn both a J.D. degree and a master’s degree in one of the following disciplines:

- Business administration (M.B.A)
- Criminal justice (M.S.)
- Dispute resolution (M.A.D.R.)
- Economics (M.A.)
- History (M.A.)
- Political science (M.A.)

For more information about dual degree programs, visit law.wayne.edu/dualdegree.

Professor Linda Beale serves as director of graduate studies. In that role, she is responsible for overseeing a significant resource for practicing lawyers in Michigan—Wayne Law’s LL.M. program.

If you are interested in continuing your legal education through Wayne Law’s LL.M. program, visit law.wayne.edu/llm, send an email to llmprogram@wayne.edu or call 313-577-3437.
Program for Entrepreneurship and Business Law

The Program for Entrepreneurship and Business Law coordinates Wayne Law’s broad array of business law courses, clinics, externships, and extracurricular/co-curricular and community engagement activities.

The breadth of the field of business and corporate law is reflected in Wayne Law’s extensive business curriculum, taught by widely recognized full-time faculty.

Wayne Law also offers numerous experiential learning and extracurricular and co-curricular activities designed to prepare students to represent entrepreneurs — or to become entrepreneurs themselves — while supporting entrepreneurship and business development in metro Detroit. In addition, the Law School offers students the chance to represent real clients on real legal matters through the Business and Community Law Clinic and Patent Procurement Clinic.

The Program for Entrepreneurship and Business Law helps aspiring business owners in underserved communities participate in the economic revival of Detroit. The program offers early-stage legal assistance to participating local startups and creates forums for entrepreneurs to receive general legal guidance, access community resources and share their own business experience.

Students have benefitted by:

- Supplying — free of charge — legal services to local entrepreneurs and inventors.
- Providing legal and business assistance to dozens of entrepreneurs, including a handcrafted blue jeans company, artisan incubator/co-working space, barber shop and the inventor of an augmented reality medical device.
- Participating in entrepreneurship programs throughout the city, working with community and business partners including Blackstone LaunchPad, Build Institute, Center for Economic Power and Development, Focus: Hope, ProsperUS Detroit, Southwest Solutions and TechTown.

Assistant (Clinical) Professor Eric Williams serves as director of the Program for Entrepreneurship and Business Law. Williams is an expert in small business, nonprofit corporations and community economic development.

For more information about the Program for Entrepreneurship and Business Law, email pebl@wayne.edu or call 313-577-9488.
The clinical education program at Wayne Law has been paramount to my success as a rising attorney. The practical training and guidance afforded by the accomplished professionals directing the clinics ensured an effortless transition from the classroom to the courtroom. The knowledge acquired, and relationships built, while engaged in the program will continue to support my success as an attorney well into the future.

— David Furman
Class of 2015
Experiential education

At Wayne Law we recognize that substantive knowledge combined with hands-on practical experience creates the best foundation for a successful and meaningful legal career. Through live client clinics and externships, we offer a number of opportunities to gain practical legal experience to bridge the gap between the study of law and the practice of law.

Under our professional skills requirement, every Wayne Law student participates in at least six credits of professional skills coursework, including at least one live client clinic or externship.

Live client clinics

Under the supervision of our expert faculty, clinic students have “first-chair” responsibility in a variety of settings that directly impact the legal and economic landscape in Michigan and beyond. In these eight clinics, student attorneys gain valuable litigation, transactional and problem-solving skills by representing individual or organizational clients:

- Asylum and Immigration Law Clinic
- Business and Community Law Clinic
- Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Clinic
- Criminal Appellate Practice Clinic
- Disability Law Clinic
- Legal Advocacy for People with Cancer Clinic
- Patent Procurement Clinic
- Transactional Environmental Law Clinic

Externships

Externships provide first-hand, in-the-field experience, supporting the work of attorney mentors and judges. A classroom component taught by an expert in the field combined with reflective exercises and discussions with student colleagues provide each extern with rich, real-world exposure to various legal careers. Wayne Law offers four externship programs:

- Corporate Counsel
- Criminal Justice
- Judicial
- Public Interest

In each program, externs work at least 150 hours in one of many approved field placements and complete a complementary colloquium. Placement opportunities range from the American Civil Liberties Union to the Michigan Court of Appeals. Students also may request approval of their own unique opportunities.
Asylum and Immigration Law Clinic

This clinic provides students with the opportunity to represent individual clients in immigration proceedings before the Department of Homeland Security and federal Immigration Courts.

The clinic has handled a variety of immigration-related cases, including asylum, relief under the Convention Against Torture and Violence Against Women Act, and U Visas. The clinic has represented clients from four continents.

Disability Law Clinic

This clinic focuses on three main types of disability-related cases: Social Security continuing disability cases involving individuals with learning/intellectual disabilities; assisting wheelchair users and other people with mobility impairments in removing barriers to housing and buildings and facilities open to the public; and promoting communication access in various settings and securing funding for communication-related assistive technology for deaf and deaf-blind individuals and others with severe communication impairments.

Business and Community Law Clinic

This clinic is Wayne Law’s transactional clinic and represents for-profit enterprises requiring general business start-up assistance. The clinic’s services include contract drafting, entity formation and preparation of trademark applications.

The clinic operates similarly to a small law firm: Students draft engagement letters, keep track of their “billable” hours, run conflicts checks and do client interviews/phone calls, all under the guidance and supervision of the faculty.

Legal Advocacy for People with Cancer Clinic

The Legal Advocacy for People with Cancer Clinic is a medical-legal partnership that offers students the opportunity to learn and develop practical lawyering skills while providing a service to low-income cancer patients living in the metro Detroit area.

The services that this clinic covers include employment, housing, insurance, legal planning and public benefits. Students in this clinic work with a rich diversity of clients and legal issues.

Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Clinic

A collaborative venture with the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan, this clinic gives students the opportunity to litigate civil rights and civil liberties impact cases before state and federal courts. Students are exposed to the full range of issues on the docket of the ACLU, such as freedom of speech and expression, juvenile justice, LGBT rights, privacy, racial justice and reproductive freedom.

Patent Procurement Clinic

Patent law students who want to improve their skills in patent drafting, client interaction and patent prosecution will be interested in this clinic. Each student will perform a patentability search, draft a patent application for a real client under the guidance of an experienced patent attorney and perform patent prosecution tasks such as responding to “office actions.”

Criminal Appellate Practice Clinic

Each student in this clinic prepares an appellate brief on behalf of a client incarcerated in a Michigan prison who has been convicted of a felony after a jury trial. Students review the trial transcript and exhibits, identify appealable issues, interview and counsel their client, draft and revise the brief, and present a mock oral argument to a panel of experienced appellate practitioners from the State Appellate Defender Office.

Transnational Environmental Law Clinic

The Transnational Environmental Law Clinic teaches students the skills and strategies needed to affect environmental policy in all three branches of state and federal government. During classroom sessions, students learn about current environmental law and policy challenges and opportunities. In the clinic, students participate in the lawmaking process by preparing policy papers and formal legislative testimony, commenting on rulemaking and permit decisions, and engaging in judicial review and enforcement litigation.
Corporate Counsel Externship

Corporate counsel externs develop some of the knowledge and skills they need to succeed as commercial and business lawyers by being placed in the corporate counsel offices of for-profit and nonprofit businesses in and around Detroit.

These placements offer opportunities for students to encounter business clients and to experience the role of lawyers in such matters as business contracts, mergers and acquisitions, real estate transactions, securities laws and compliance with governmental regulation of business and industry.

Criminal Justice Externship

Criminal justice externs learn about the roles and responsibilities of criminal prosecutors and defenders, the judicial process in criminal cases, and strategic and ethical issues in criminal law. Through their fieldwork, criminal justice externs develop advocacy and law practice management skills, the ability to recognize and resolve strategic and ethical dilemmas, and the ability to learn from experience.

In the small classroom setting of the criminal justice colloquium, criminal justice externs meet with peers working in similar placements. Facilitated and taught by an experienced practitioner, the colloquium provides opportunities for externs to discuss and reflect on their field experiences and expand their understanding of the challenges inherent in a career in the criminal justice system.

Judicial Externship

Judicial externs learn about the roles and responsibilities of judges and judicial clerks, judicial decision-making and effective advocacy. Judicial externs develop skills in analysis, oral communication, research, writing and law practice management.

Judicial externs may work in judicial chambers at any federal court, Michigan Supreme Court, Michigan Court of Appeals or circuit courts in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb or Washtenaw counties.

Public Interest Externship

Public interest externs learn about the roles and responsibilities of public interest lawyers, strategic and ethical dimensions of public interest practice, and effective advocacy. Public interest externs develop skills in interviewing and counseling, legal drafting, oral communication and law practice management. Placements range from legal services organizations to federal government offices, such as the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.
Free Legal Aid Clinic

The Free Legal Aid Clinic is an independent nonprofit organization with a board of directors composed of Wayne Law students. Students in this clinic handle family law matters under the supervision of lawyers from Lakeshore Legal Aid and elder law matters under the supervision of lawyers from the Elder Law and Advocacy Center. Students earn academic credit for working at the clinic by taking the Law School’s Public Interest Externship courses.

Jessup International Law Moot Court

Wayne Law’s Jessup International Law Moot Court Team competes in the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition, which simulates a case before the International Court of Justice (World Court). Jessup is the largest and most-prestigious moot court competition in the world with nearly 700 law schools competing from more than 90 countries across the globe. Wayne Law’s Jessup team comprises five second- and third-year students. The International Law Students Association creates and releases a compromis each fall that outlines the issues and facts behind a hypothetical international legal dispute between two fictional countries. Jessup members research, write and submit a memorial and prepare for the regional competition annually in early spring by participating in various moot arguments in front of faculty and practicing attorneys around the metro Detroit area. At the competition, the Jessup team faces off against other schools in hopes of reaching the international rounds in Washington, D.C. In 2015, Wayne Law’s Jessup team won the U.S. Midwest Regional, received an award for Best Memorial (brief) and tied for Best Oralist.

The Journal of Law in Society

Students at Wayne Law established The Journal of Law in Society in 1997 to provide for the scholarly evaluation of the law in relation to various segments of society. The journal works in partnership with the Law School’s Damon J. Keith Center for Civil Rights. It addresses social policy issues in a legal context and combines legal theory with social reality. It is published twice each academic year and hosts an annual academic symposium. Students are invited to join the journal based upon their performance in a writing competition.

Mock Trial

Mock Trial was founded in 1985 to train law students in trial courtroom advocacy. In a simulated courtroom setting, a student and a partner present one civil and one criminal trial over the course of the fall and winter semesters. This student-run program is open to upper-class students who have passed a tryout. In 2015, a Wayne Law Mock Trial team won the Michigan and Ohio regional round of the National Trial Competition. Wayne Law hosted the regional at the Theodore Levin U.S. Courthouse in Detroit.

Wayne Law Moot Court

Since 1949, Wayne Law has had a nationally acclaimed student-run Moot Court program that features a rigorous in-house appellate advocacy competition in both the fall and winter semesters. Junior members (second-year students) partner to research and write appellate briefs involving legal issues in unsettled areas of the law. The students then argue their cases against other partners in front of senior members (third-year students) in a formal judicial-style setting. Successful teams reach the Arthur Neef (fall) and Law Day (winter) Competitions, where the best of Moot Court’s advocates face-off in front of practicing lawyers, law professors and judges from the Michigan Supreme Court, Court of Appeals and county circuit courts. The strongest advocates are selected to represent Wayne Law in both regional and national Moot Court competitions. In 2015, a Wayne Law national Moot Court team reached the final round in the American Bar Association National Appellate Advocacy Competition Regionals. A Wayne Law team also took home the Best Brief award at the annual Jeffrey G. Miller Pace National Environmental Law Moot Court Competition. Another Wayne Law team won the second-place award for brief at the 31st annual Cardozo/BMI Entertainment and Communications Law Moot Court Competition.

Wayne Law Review

The Wayne Law Review has been published since 1954. Two of the three annual issues include articles of general academic and professional interest authored by legal scholars, as well as notes written by student members. A third issue features an annual survey of developments in Michigan law and is widely read by members of the Michigan legal community. Students are invited to join the Wayne Law Review on the basis of high academic standing or through a writing competition each summer.
I love the location of Wayne State’s campus. Being in the heart of a progressive legal market, as well as a revitalized social scene is very exciting.”

Faculty

Many law schools market their faculty as being the best of the best. At Wayne Law, we have concrete evidence of our faculty's success in their numerous books, articles, prominent cases, expert blogs and regular comments in local, national and international news sources. They bring a rare wealth of experience and knowledge to the classroom. And their first priority is always you, the student. Our faculty members are not only educators, but also mentors, friends and colleagues. They will challenge you to raise your expectations and reach heights you never thought possible.

Law school is demanding and requires most of a student’s concentration and resources. Fortunately, Wayne Law offers a solid support network. Student Affairs is a one-stop resource dedicated to assisting you and answering all your needs — academic, personal or professional. Typical inquiries from students include questions about academic program planning, academic success and bar preparation programming, Americans with Disabilities Act accommodations, character and fitness, dual degree options, group workshops, health insurance and student life. All students are encouraged to visit Student Affairs upon arrival at the Law School.

In addition to the resources offered by Student Affairs, you also can take advantage of encouragement and assistance from peers and advisers through a number of student organizations. More than 30 student organizations add greatly to the quality of life at the Law School by organizing social events, sponsoring speakers and debates on topics of current interest, volunteering their time to public service and collaborating to produce programs with area practitioners.

I became an integral part of the student experience through Wayne Law’s student organizations. They are the bridge between the classroom and the real world. They bring in so many networking opportunities and diverse viewpoints. I am excited to have been part of that experience as a president of the Black Law Student Association, a founder of the Criminal Law Society and a governor on the Student Bar Association Board of Governors.”

Midtown Detroit offers plenty to do, and most things are within walking distance of the Law School. You can find sushi, bar food or high-end dining, and many restaurant owners cater to Wayne students. You can visit the Detroit Institute of Arts and Detroit Historical Museum – both free – or explore the turn-of-the-century architecture around Midtown. Most important, you have the benefit of legal opportunities at notable firms and courthouses just a short distance away.”

Live, learn, work, play in Midtown Detroit

The Law School’s home in Midtown Detroit gives students almost limitless professional, social and cultural opportunities.

One of the best perks for Wayne Law students is their campus location in the heart of Detroit’s vibrant legal market. Our students have direct access to externship, internship and employment opportunities at state and federal courts, government offices, multinational corporations, unions and major law firms.

Wayne Law students are able to enjoy museums in the cultural center, shows in the theatre district, professional sports games downtown and international cuisine in the city’s many diverse ethnic enclaves. The Law School is within walking distance of the Detroit Public Library, Detroit Institute of Arts, International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit, Detroit Historical Museum and Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History. East of the main campus are the Detroit Medical Center and Wayne State University Medical School, and adjacent to campus is the university’s Hilberry Theatre, which houses one of the most distinguished graduate theatre repertory companies in the United States. South of campus are the Bonstelle Theatre and Orchestra Hall.

As a Wayne Law student, you’ll be in the center of a bustling metropolis and witness first-hand the legal issues facing urban residents and environments. Your experience here will help you to be successful virtually anywhere.

Off-campus living

Metro Detroit is a vibrant, exciting place to live. Many Wayne Law students choose to live off campus in the thriving Midtown area surrounding the school or a little farther away in one of Detroit’s historic neighborhoods or appealing suburbs.

Midtown is one of the fastest-developing areas in Detroit with a wide variety of housing options, including new condo units, restored lofts and apartments. All are within walking distance of the area’s museums, galleries, theatres, shops and restaurants. A few miles away from campus, downtown Detroit and the historic Corktown and Woodbridge neighborhoods have their own distinct flavors.

Several suburbs a short drive from Wayne Law are also great places to live. Just up Woodward Avenue, Royal Oak and Ferndale are known for their unique shops, restaurants and night spots. A little further north, Birmingham also has a thriving shopping and entertainment area. Each of these communities has tree-lined streets, family centered neighborhoods and a great quality of life with homes, apartments, condos and lofts providing a variety of housing options. To the east, the Grosse Pointe communities offer beautiful living near the water. Canton and Dearborn, west of campus, are pleasant communities with scenic parks and many events and activities to enjoy.

Alumni network

They say you’re only as good as the company you keep. As a graduate of Wayne Law, you’ll be in great company. Specifically, you’ll join a vast alumni network made up of prominent judges, justices, law firm partners, government officials, law school deans and past presidents of the State Bar of Michigan — just to name a few. Our more than 11,000 living alumni are leaders in the legal community and work in a variety of settings in every state of the nation and more than a dozen foreign countries.

Wayne Law alumni have a great deal of pride in their alma mater and continue their involvement with the Law School years after passing the bar. Each year, alumni come together for a number of events, including forums, panel discussions, professional meetings, receptions and reunions. Our alumni are actively involved in mentoring students, helping them along their career path. They also are actively engaged in community relations, adjunct teaching and fundraising.

Here’s a sampling of our highly accomplished alumni and, in their own words, how they felt Wayne Law prepared them for their legal careers. Visit law.wayne.edu/alumni to learn more about our alumni community.

“Participating in the Free Legal Aid Clinic, moot court and trial advocacy courses helped me to focus on my desire to be a trial lawyer. The clinic gave me a chance to actually go into court, and moot court and trial advocacy gave me chances to practice making arguments.”

— Jerry Dorsey IV, ’86
Chief of Trials, Wayne County Prosecutor’s Office

“The best part about Wayne Law for me was some of the professors and the other progressive-minded students who are now my colleagues in the struggle. Internships and clinics were also very important. That’s where I met a lot of my mentors and actually how I was first able to work at Legal Aid and Defender of Detroit and eventually found the Sugar Law Center.”

— Tony Paris, ’07
Lead Attorney, Sugar Law Center for Economic and Social Justice, Detroit

“Attending Wayne Law afforded me the unique opportunity to live and work in Detroit and to learn from world-class legal minds who wrestle with many of the same urban issues I was facing in my career. As someone who went back to school after working for over a decade in the world of government, nonprofit and community-based organizations, law school provided a foundation of understanding that gave me a deeper insight into how our society works and where I can help shape it for the public good.”

— Francis Grunow, ’10
Urbanist and Public Policy Consultant
Going to law school represented a major economic sacrifice, so I had to work to supplement my GI Bill benefits. Wayne Law had, and has, a night school program, which was of high quality and made it possible for me to complete my studies and join the bar."

— Bruce Miller, ’54
General Counsel, Metro AFL-CIO, Detroit; founder, Miller Cohen PLC, Detroit

Wayne Law gave me the solid legal education upon which I based both my arguments as an attorney and my opinions as a judge. More importantly, Wayne Law instilled the importance of being an integral part of the community to better complement both these jobs."

— Hon. Nanci Grant, ’89
Chief Judge, Sixth Judicial Circuit Court of Michigan

Wayne Law gave me a solid and varied foundation in intellectual property law (which included the basics as well as modern legal topics such as digital copyright). Nationally renowned professors served as excellent role models. Their backgrounds and contacts reached beyond Michigan. Wayne State has name recognition in the Capitol region. I practice in the surrounding area and am plugged into a network of alumni."

— Ami (Patel) Gadhia, ’03
Portfolio Director for Technology Licensing, Johns Hopkins Technology Ventures Office, Baltimore

Wayne Law’s excellent faculty prepared me not only for the bar exam, but for the practice of law, as well. I graduated ready to practice law because of the excellent instruction that I received in classes such as Criminal Law, Trial Advocacy and Legal Writing."

Last year we disbursed more than $5.1 million in merit and need-based scholarships.

Scholarships for incoming students
Wayne Law is committed to providing an affordable legal education and consistently has offered the lowest tuition rates of any law school in the state.

Wayne Law offers a wide range of scholarships, including those that offer up to full tuition. Millions of dollars in merit- and need-based scholarships are provided to help cover tuition expenses, making Wayne Law the most affordable law school in Michigan.

When you submit your Wayne Law admissions application and file a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), you’re automatically considered for generous scholarships for new students. No separate application form is required for these scholarships.

Scholarships for continuing students
Wayne Law offers scholarship opportunities for continuing students. For more information about these awards and scholarships, visit law.wayne.edu/scholarships or call the scholarship office at 313-577-3996.

Financial aid

Wayne Law students who want to be considered for financial aid must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). The FAFSA must be completed every year at fafsa.ed.gov. It is required to determine eligibility for federal student loans and the federal work-study program. New students don’t need to wait until admission acceptance to submit the form. Parent information isn’t required for J.D. or LL.M. students.

The FAFSA becomes available Jan. 1 for the upcoming school year. However, students are strongly encouraged to use the IRS Data Retrieval option to file the form. The IRS Data Retrieval tool will immediately upload tax data to the FAFSA. This tool cannot be used until one to two weeks after electronically filing a tax return.

List the WSU federal code, 002329, in the school release section on the FAFSA. Your application information will be electronically transmitted to the Wayne Law Office of Student Financial Aid. You can check the status of your aid application, awards and outstanding requirements in academica.wayne.edu.

You will receive financial aid correspondence via your WSU email address. Activate your WSU email account as soon as you receive an AccessID from the Admissions Office.

Visit law.financialaid.wayne.edu for more information about financial aid programs and resources. Also available on the site are financial aid FAQs, forms, a financial aid checklist and details about the various types of financial aid.
The following information is intended to help answer any questions you may have about applying to Wayne Law. As always, however, the best way to learn about the Law School and experience things firsthand is by scheduling a visit to campus. To do so, email us at lawinquire@wayne.edu or call 313-577-3937.

Admissions requirements

The Law School has no requirements with respect to the content of an applicant’s undergraduate education, but the Admissions Committee will take into account the nature of college work completed as well as the grades achieved. Proficiency in the English language, both written and oral, and in analytical skills are essential to the successful study of law. The suggestions for pre-law preparation in the ABA-LSAC Official Guide to ABA-Approved Law Schools are excellent. The book may be ordered from the Law School Admission Council at lsac.org and is available in most bookstores and libraries.

Instructions to apply for admission to the J.D. program

First-year applicants

We accept applications for admission starting Oct. 1, and the application deadline is July 1. Late applications will receive less favorable consideration. To receive priority consideration for merit-based scholarships, all application materials for first-year admission must be received in the Admissions Office by Jan. 15. No separate application is required for these scholarships. The applicant’s file will be considered complete when the Admissions Office has received all of the following:

- The free Law School online application with an electronic signature.
- The JD-CAS report, which will include the applicant’s LSAT score(s) and copies of transcripts from all of the U.S. undergraduate schools the applicant has attended. The applicant must direct each U.S. undergraduate school attended to send a transcript to JD-CAS.

Applicants educated outside the U.S., its territories or Canada must make use of a credential evaluation service. We prefer use of the JD-CAS, but we also will accept evaluations from organizations that are members of the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services or the Association of International Credentials Evaluators.

- A personal statement, written by an applicant using his/her own words, conveying information not in the application that the applicant feels the Admissions Committee would find helpful in assessing the candidate.
- Two letters of recommendation from individuals such as college professors or others who can comment on the applicant’s intellectual abilities and academic performance. An employer may submit recommendation letters for applicants who have been out of school for a number of years. Letters of recommendation should be sent directly to LSAC Law Services. (Additionally, two LSAC evaluations are recommended but not required.)

Admissions policy

At Wayne Law, we use a holistic approach in evaluating applicants. Every application is thoroughly read by an admissions professional and members of the Faculty Admissions Committee. The Admissions Committee considers positively the following factors in reaching admissions decisions:

(1) an applicant’s academic achievement and potential, as shown by his/her LSAT score and Grade Point Average;

(2) an applicant’s demonstrated capacity to overcome or persevere against:

(a) socioeconomic disadvantage, whether the applicant would be the first generation of his/her family to attend or graduate from college or a professional program and whether he/she was employed or raising a family while attending school; or

(b) substantial obstacles such as family or personal adversity, attendance at an underperforming school (elementary, middle or high school), and prejudice or discrimination;

(3) any special circumstances suggesting that the applicant’s LSAT score or academic record doesn’t accurately reflect his/her current academic potential, such as the age of the applicant’s GPA; a marked improvement in grades shown in the later years of college; or other special circumstances the candidate conveys in his or her personal statement or elsewhere in the application; and

(4) other factors that foster a diverse and engaged law school environment, such as geographic residence (including in the city of Detroit), work and volunteer experience, leadership qualities, commitment to community and public service, communication skills, multilingual proficiency, and experience of life in a foreign country or on a Native American tribal reservation.

The admissions policy may be read in its entirety online at law.wayne.edu. Applicants are encouraged to discuss any or all of these factors in their personal statements.

Deferred admissions

The Law School doesn’t defer admissions except for persons called to military service. Any admittee who withdraws from the class must submit a new application for the next year for which he or she seeks admission.

Reduced program

The first-year day program curriculum is mandatory, but, under special circumstances including child-care responsibilities, significant health care concerns or as part of an ADA accommodation, students may be permitted to take a slightly reduced course load. The applicant must submit a written request prior to registration to the Assistant Dean of Admissions setting forth the personal circumstance justifying the request for admission as a reduced-load student.

Reconsideration

An applicant may request reconsideration of an adverse admissions decision by writing a letter to the Assistant Dean of Admissions stating specific reason(s) why reconsideration is merited. The application then will be reconsidered by the Admissions Committee. Applicants who have successfully petitioned for reconsideration are those who have submitted updated information such as new test scores or additional grades.

Transfer applicants

A transfer applicant must have completed all of the first-year day or evening courses required by his or her ABA-accredited law school. Transfer students are admitted to the fall term only. The application deadline for transfer applicants is July 1.

A transfer applicant’s file will be considered when the Admissions Office has received all of the following:

- The Law School online application with an electronic signature.
- An official transcript sent directly from the applicant’s law school with all grades posted for the academic year.
- A letter of good standing from the applicant’s law school.
- A JD-CAS report.

Guest student applicants for fall and/or winter terms

The transfer applicant requirements and procedures outlined above apply to a law student who wishes to enroll at Wayne Law for one or two terms as a guest student. Application deadline is July 1 for fall term and Dec. 1 for winter term.

In the case of a guest student, the letter of good standing also should include a statement granting permission for the applicant to attend Wayne Law for the semester(s) indicated and an agreement to accept credits earned at the Law School and any other requirements or limitations from the “home” law school.
Guest student applicants for the summer term

A student from another ABA-accredited law school may take one or two summer courses at Wayne Law provided the student is in good standing and receives permission from his or her “home” law school. Application should be made by submitting the Law School summer guest application form. Application deadline is May 15 for summer term.

LL.M. applicants

To apply to any of our four LL.M. programs, complete an online application at law.wayne.edu/llmapply. An overview can be found by visiting law.wayne.edu/llm. Information about tuition, scholarships and financial aid can be found at law.financialaid.wayne.edu.

Specific questions should be addressed to llmprogram@wayne.edu or 313-577-3437.

Application deadlines:
- Nov. 1 for the winter term
- March 15 for the spring/summer term
- July 1 for the fall term

Students from outside the United States are advised to apply several months in advance of these deadlines so as to allow adequate time to obtain the necessary student visas.

Good Neighbor policy

Law School students who are residents of Fulton, Lucas, Ottawa and Williams counties in Ohio and the province of Ontario, Canada, pay resident tuition.

Refunds

Questions about refunds, tuition, fees and other expenses should be directed to the university Student Services Office at 313-577-2100 or studentservice@wayne.edu.

Please keep in mind that there are character, fitness and other qualifications for admission to the bar. Wayne Law encourages applicants, prior to matriculation, to determine what those requirements are in the state(s) in which they intend to practice.
