 Note that the LL.M. Academic Regulations list LEX 8598 (Public Interest Externship: Practicum) as an approved course. This is incorrect because only letter-graded courses may be counted toward the LL.M. degree and the Practicum is not a letter-graded course. LEX 8599 (Public Interest Externship: Colloquium), the classroom component part of an externship, is letter-graded and may be counted toward the LL.M. degree. Please note that the Colloquium requires that a specified number of externship placement hours be completed as part of the Colloquium course requirements, which means that you must complete the same work hours required for a Practicum even though you cannot receive academic credit for such work.
